

FCC Values Activity

Below are 3 of the 5 FCC Coach Values. Discuss these 3 values in your groups while considering the following questions...

Questions to discuss:

1. How are these values important when coaching your clients?
2. How do these values work together to benefit the client?

Full-Family Focus: Families change over time and it's important to address all people in the family as defined by the client.

Family-Led: Family-led means that you help families recognize and own their own power and agency to achieve their goals.

Respect: Staff honors a family's expertise and lived experience. Respect is fundamental to establishing trust in a coaching relationship.

FCC Values Activity

Below are 3 of the 5 FCC Coach Values. Discuss these 3 values in your groups while considering the following questions...

Questions to discuss:

1. How are these values important when coaching your clients?
2. How do these values work together to benefit the client?

Family-Led: Family-led means that you help families recognize and own their own power and agency to achieve their goals.

Respect: Staff honors a family's expertise and lived experience. Respect is fundamental to establishing trust in a coaching relationship.

Strength-Based: Staff begins with an understanding that all families have strengths. The family identifies their strengths, and the coach then works with families to utilize these strengths and build others.

FCC Values Activity

Below are 3 of the 5 FCC Coach Values. Discuss these 3 values in your groups while considering the following questions...

Questions to discuss:

1. How are these values important when coaching your clients?
2. How do these values work together to benefit the client?

Respect: Staff honors a family's expertise and lived experience. Respect is fundamental to establishing trust in a coaching relationship.

Strength-Based: Staff begins with an understanding that all families have strengths. The family identifies their strengths, and the coach then works with families to utilize these strengths and build others.

Racial Equity and Inclusion: Staff understands that biases may influence their approach to working with families in the design and delivery of social services. Understanding these biases is critical to effectively working with families.